ATTENDEE INFORMATION

EVERYTHING about food preservation...in one place

Food Preservation Expo is a one-stop shopping and education experience where you can learn everything you want to know about preserving foods at home.

The EXPO features a marketplace and an education program giving you the opportunity to see and hear—in one place—all the available tools, methods, and expertise available today. You can learn how to preserve seasonal foods, how to stock an emergency pantry, and the historical traditions of “putting food by”.

See the latest tools and methods

The MARKETPLACE is where you can see the latest equipment, watch demonstrations, and browse books that detail traditional and modern methods for turning seasonal foods into delicious home preserved products.

You'll find information for every method. Not just canning and freezing, but also fermenting, salting, drying, pickling, and curing, for every type of food: fruits, vegetables, meats, fish, eggs, and dairy.

Meet and talk with experts

The EDUCATION program features industry experts who will talk about the diversity of food preservation methods, demystify the tools, explain the science, and share history of the techniques. They will showcase traditional and modern methods for preserving all types of foods, from the familiar to the lesser known.

You'll have an opportunity to hear from master canners, pickle purveyors and kraut creators, makers of dehydrated soups and beef jerky, and other knowledgeable specialists.

Who will want to attend FOOD PRESERVATION EXPO?

Food Preservation Expo will appeal to anyone who wants to learn and use food preservation methods:

- Consumers who like to preserve local foods at home
- Home gardeners wanting to put up their harvest
- Hunters and fishers needing to prepare their catch
- Farmers aspiring to offer value-add products
- “Foodies” interested in the latest technology
- Survivalists building emergency supplies
- Chefs looking for ideas to expand their menu
- PEOPLE LIKE YOU
